Dear Mr. Collins:

I have received your letter to Admiral Turner of 15 August 1977 in which you state that you have been commissioned to produce an estimate of the U.S. Soviet military balance and solicit our comments. Thank you for your two previous studies on the subject which you enclosed. I have turned them over to the offices concerned with that subject and they will be in contact with you if they have any comments to offer.

Sincerely,

George L. Cary
Legislative Counsel

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20540

August 15, 1977

Vice Admiral Stansfield Turner
Director of Central Intelligence
Headquarters, Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Admiral Turner:

A member of Congress has commissioned me to produce a new assessment of the U.S./Soviet military balance for publication as a congressional document in January 1978, whether or not I remain at the Library of Congress. It will subsume, supplement, and supersede my two previous studies on the subject, which are inclosed.

If you care to critique either or both at this stage, I promise to consider your comments carefully. I am especially interested in factual errors, omissions, interpretations, and updates. Contributions, which must be unclassified, are acceptable in whatever form you find most convenient: as a hand-written or typed memorandum; as notations on the documents; telephonically (my number is 202-426-5060); by personal conversation in your office or wherever else you choose; or any combination of the above. I have a Top Secret security clearance on file with DOD if classified discussions seem essential. A "Q" clearance is pending.

A draft outline and study plan is already being used to shape the new document. Revisions will be made if required. I therefore request that comments reach me not later than September 9, 1977 if you take this opportunity to express your point of view. Earlier answers would be appreciated.

Sincerely,
